HOAG-LANE'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER
HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his Factory.
Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.
Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the best and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.
It fastens without bolt or screw, and is the most easily and speedily operated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the trembling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and durable.
It is best to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO OCTOBER 4.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The steel importers had an interview with Secretary Boutwell. They represented that their business is suffering on account of the action of the American Consul at Sheffield, in refusing to sign their invoices, and they asked for an investigation of the charges against the Consul, which the Secretary promised.

Washington specials state that the Government has not decided to take any action in the case of the Cuban privateer Hornet, nor is it probable she will be interfered with. The Administration takes the view that under the circumstances, the Hornet cannot be considered strictly a pirate, and the United States is not bound to attempt her capture.

Letters from Cuba were received here yesterday and confirms previous reports of the insubordination and treachery of the Cuban army of Cespedes and Quesada, who are untiring in their endeavors to compromise the conflicting elements, but unsuccessful. The Americans wish to get away. They report that every promise made them before leaving New York has been violated and that the representations of the state of affairs on the Island were equally false. Americans, who have escaped, describe the condition of their comrades as most pitiful. They are compelled to take the front in all contests and receive no quarter from the Spaniards. The wounded are left on the field and are invariably murdered; and added to this there is almost daily assassination of their comrades by those whose independence they were induced to assist in securing. Several engagements have taken place, in all of which the Spaniards were defeated, but in each the Americans lost largely. These engagements are represented as important as affecting the final result of the war.

The correspondence between C. P. Mallory & Co., owners of the steamship Enterpe, and the Secretary of State, is furnished for publication. Under date of October 1st, the owners addressed Secretary Fish stating that the Enterpe had been chartered to Jose Piuant to load with artillery for Havana. They were informed by rumor that a pirate was waiting off Sandy Hook to intercept the Enterpe, and asked in such an event what protection they would have from the United States Government. Secretary Fish in reply says that while convoy cannot be given the vessel, the United States will, if a vessel carrying their flag, is molested on the high seas use all its power to punish the offenders and prevent its repitition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—As comments have been made in the numerous newspapers affecting the administration in connection with the recent gold panic, much interest is felt on the subject. The Washington agent of the Associated Press to-night called upon the President to ascertain whether there was any foundation for the insinuations or charges against the administration. The President conversed with the utmost frankness on the subject. He said he had not thought it proper publicly to contradict the statement concerning himself as he had done nothing whatever to influence the money market or afford advantage to private parties. While in New York he had many advisers but said that the administration always held itself in a position to act as seemed best, and free to make any change of policy for the public good. In the course of the conversation the President stated that while on the eve of going to Newport, James Fisk, Jr., came aboard the steamer at New York, and said to the President that Gould had sent him to ask if he would privately give him a little intimation as to what the Administration was going to do on the financial question. The President replied that giving such information would not be fair, and asked Fisk whether he did not think so himself. Fisk admitted that it would not be fair. The President informed him that whenever the Administration was going to change its action of policy, the Secretary of the Treasury would give notice through the newspapers as usual, so as everybody might know at the same time, thus excluding the possible charge of favoritism. On the morning of the panic (Friday week) Secretary Boutwell communicated the state of affairs in New York, when the President immediately replied: "Sell five millions of gold." The Secretary replied that he had come for the purpose of suggesting the sale of three millions of gold. The idea of selling gold thus appearing to be in the mind of each at the same time. A few minutes thereafter an order was telegraphed to New York to sell four millions of gold. The President denied that he had informed any one of the purpose of the Administration on financial subjects. The same remark is equally true of the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Amos Kendall has been ill for several weeks. Dr. Dexter says he cannot recover.

New York News.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The suspension of T. Morgan & Sons, stock brokers, is announced.

The Times asserts positively that notwithstanding the orders of Marshal Barlow, the steamer Alabama, under command of Capt. Littleburn, left here on Sunday evening last with 512 men, 13 pieces of heavy ordnance, 200 Remington rifles and a large amount of powder for the Cuban revolutionary army. Among the men were 160 of the expedition captured at Gardiner's Island last summer. The schooner Enterpe has not sailed. The steamer Cuba, formerly the Hornet, was reported off Barnegat on Thursday. She is commanded by Captain Higgins, formerly of the U. S. navy, but during the rebellion a Confederate officer.

A member of the firm of Lockwood & Co. authoritatively denies the rumor that their liabilities approach the sum mentioned, between $20,000 and $30,000. He says that the losses are not yet fully developed and will not reach half that sum. The Gold Board of Exchange will commence at once the work of weeding out the "Lame Ducks" in the Board. The rules which were suspended by the Gold Exchange on Thursday will go into operation on Monday unless further suspended. Should the rules be enforced on Monday, the parties who have failed to make settlement will be liable to have their gold sold out and will also be subjected to fines for their delinquency.

Yesterday morning the French steamer Vette de Paris took on board twenty-two French Canadians for Rome. They are the third division of Papal recruits. Several Canadian priests accompany them.

A Special dispatch from Fernando, Florida, yesterday, states that the vessels of the Cuban expedition had sailed before Marshal Barlow's dispatch to detain them was received. Two hundred recruits for the Cuban army arrived there yesterday, from Macon, Georgia. An American revenue cutter and three Spanish gunboats are off Cedar Keys, on the lookout for reinforcements.

A New Orleans special of yesterday reports that the steamer Lillian left for Pass à l'Outre early yesterday morning, for Florida ports. The steamer Tensas was still there with no preparations for sea.

Affairs on the Plains.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—An Omaha dispatch says the expedition under Gen. Dunoan, which left Fort McPherson for the Republican river, surprised a camp of fifty-six lodges last Sunday and drove the Indians away, capturing a large quantity of supplies and camp equipage. They killed one Indian and wounded two.

The question of the junction of the Union and Central Railroads is yet unsettled. Leading officers of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express have arrived, and are making efforts to secure an extension of their contract with the Union Pacific.

Judge Dent Again.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 3.—An Avalanche special from Grenada, Miss., says Judge Dent, in a speech there yesterday, said Grant favored his election and had told him he hoped he would be elected.

The Louisville Convention.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 3.—Arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates to the Commercial Convention, are about completed. The programme includes a concert, banquet and steamboat excursion. A grand procession, representing every trade, will be one of the features of the opening day. Ex-President Fillmore is to be tendered a public reception.

Providence Dispatch.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 3.—The boiler of a steam fire engine exploded Saturday night, while going to a fire, injuring several persons. The explosion was downward or a sad loss of life would have resulted.

Many famous horses have arrived to participate in the Narragansett Park meeting, which commences on Tuesday.

The Indianapolis Horror.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 3.—The coroner gives the number of killed by the explosion at the fair grounds, on Friday, including two wounded who have since died, at twenty-three. One body is still unrecognizable, and the head and some fragments of another. Two or three more of the wounded are still in a very critical condition, and will probably not recover. As near as can be ascertained, between fifty and sixty were wounded. The coroner's jury are still in session, taking testimony, but will probably not render their verdict for several days. It is definitely ascertained that only one female was killed, a girl of twelve years. Several ladies were severely wounded.

Earthquake Shock in Utah.

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—A dispatch from Filmore, Utah, reports a violent shock of earthquake yesterday morning.

Virginia Legislature.

RICHMOND, Oct. 4.—About 100 members of the Legislature have arrived. Very few, if any, are committed to candidates for the United States Senate, and all seem to be waiting for the caucus to determine the matter. The names chiefly mentioned by the Walker men to-night, for the Senate, are Franklin Stearns, Gen. Robt. Williams, and Lieut. Gov. John F. Lewis. A caucus of the Walker men will be held to-morrow night to nominate officers of the Legislature. S. Turner and J. B. Brandshaw are spoken of for Speaker of the House. The Senatorial election will not take place until the end of the week.

Chicago Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—A carriage and pair of horses drove off the Wells street bridge, at midnight last night while the bridge was open for the passage of a vessel. The driver's body was recovered an hour afterward. It is not believed anybody was inside the carriage, which is not yet recovered. The driver was probably asleep or intoxicated.

A letter from on board the the Cuban privateer Hornet, says all the negotiations for her purchase were effected on the high seas, so as not to give the American or English Government any pretext for interfering. It is said the leading European nations will treat her as a pirate.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Prince Napoleon has written a letter to Colonel Banton, chairman and other Americans sojourning in London, thanking them for their address congratulating him on his liberal speech in the Senate. The Prince reminds them of the bands which have always united France and America and continues; that the present position bears a resemblance to that at the end of the last century. France seeks to found a liberal Democracy at the moment when America emerges from a gigantic struggle for the destruction of slavery which dishonored the Republic. The methods of France and America are different, but the end is the same. Constitutional liberty [illegible] in France will place the political sentiments of France and America in complete accord as their interests already are. In conclusion, the Prince thanks his American friends for having pardoned in his speech liberal and Democratic sentiments, which alone can secure the end at which they aim, the alliance of the Empire with liberty.

Nearly all the journals express dissatisfaction at the fact that the Chambers have not been immediately assembled.

Advices from Paraguayan sources say that the losses of the Brasilians in their late battles amounted to 8,000 men. President Lopez retired to the Grand Cordilleras, whence to the Acoinara where he had in advance prepared a new position for his forces.

The allies are preparing to withdraw from Paraguay, but would leave a few troops behind to support the provisional government established at Asuncion.

The Argentine government had already ratified its contingent to the allied army of Paraguay.

Buenos Ayres journals accuse the Brasilians of assassinating their prisoners.

The Patrie contradicts the report that the French troops are to retire from Rome on the 15th of November.

The Figaro says M. Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans, will defend liberal ideas before the Ecumenical Council and that fifty American bishops will give him their support.

The Journal Officiale announces that the Senate and Corps Legislatif have been convoked to meet on the 29th of November.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—It is officially stated that an Austrian-Chinese treaty was signed at Tientsin recently.

The Avondale Catastrophe.

SUSPICIONS OF INCENDIARISM.

The newspapers in the region of the recent great calamity in Pennsylvania abound in surmises of incendiarism in connection with the disaster. The Scranton Republican, the leading paper in that district, says the following:

The testimony taken this week in the Avondale inquest will not be published in full, but only such portions of the evidence adduced before Coroner Wetherill and jury at Plymouth, on Saturday. The theory of the fire, which has gradually developed itself, is, briefly, that the work of the whole was planned by the best from the ventilating furnace. It is accounted by every experienced miner who was examined. There was no fire at that point, while the working shafts were filled with dense smoke, rendering it impossible for any one to approach the furnace. The theory is that the fire was started in the bottom of the slope, and that the flames were communicated to the timbers at the bottom of the furnace shaft, by the burning of oil-soaked waste. The theory is that the fire was not set by the furnace in the mine, but by the furnace on the surface entirely safe. Interdependence of Agricultural and Manufacturing Pursuits.

The utility of agricultural and mechanical fairs is now generally known and acknowledged. Such exhibitions are multiplying all over the country, and are fast improving in interest and value. Objections are frequently urged against the policy of giving so much prominence to the horse department in trials of bottom and speed; but there is certainly one advantage in this feature of our fairs which is not to be despised, viz: It attracts crowds and assists the societies in meeting expenses, which would be rather uphill work without these displays of horseflesh. Say what we will against this practice, no modern society can ignore it and be successful.

Our fairs can be made an important agency in working out the problems which belong to our national growth. They should enable our people better to comprehend the close connection between the two great interests of agriculture and manufactures, and to see how the highest results are to be worked out by fostering these branches of industry together. In this State we produce food in abundance, but produce too few of the other necessaries of life. It is remarked, by every one who comes among us that our greatest need is manufactures. The growth of manufacturing industries in our State would in turn further stimulate agriculture. It would give our farmers a more extensive market at better prices. Statistics of the country show that the home consumption of agricultural products is seven times the export demand. In those communities where manufacturing interests have been extensively developed the home market is the market which is of special value to the farmer. It has been fully said that it is the demand for the products of the immediate neighborhood, the garden and the dairy and the orchard, which yields the largest profit and adds most to the wealth of the country. In Oregon the richness of our soil has compensated in part for the disadvantages we labor under in respect to manufactures; but we cannot attain a high condition of prosperity unless both be united. We need a better distribution of property and employment. The mechanical and manufacturing departments of our fairs should therefore be especially attended to. Almost every leading article needed for the home can be produced from wool, flax, which exists, which may readily be created. Mills and other facilities for preparing these products for consumption, and energy in using the advantages of our situation to develop the industrial vigor and activity of which any State is capable, etc.

In Boston

it is stated that the fall trade has opened auspiciously for that city. Manufacturers find the aggregate of their sales greater than ever before. The western public is buying, promptly and largely, and paying promptly. The same report comes from New York. All this goes to show that the [illegible] of those who misrepresented by the political demagogues who, for partisan ends, are fostering that the masses [illegible] and that [illegible] is impending.

The Grand Jury Report, with a batch of [illegible] questions about the old county, the Quinnimic, and the means to keep them at their work, is ready to work now. They are satisfactory as far as they go. By all means keep them grinding! They will be as well to fill half a column of space as the generality of the [illegible] and muddy speculations which the papers in the habit of publishing. Were they taken out we shouldn't expect to see anything better in their place, and we don't see much to see anything worse.

The Sacramento Union comes with great satisfaction from the Pacific Rural Press a statement about the battle of Gettysburg, in which the Yankees [illegible] Lee defeated from two to three days, and that they were so [illegible] that he had to quit; that they were more [illegible] marched back to the Potomac. This is a cheerful way of putting it, and we have no doubt the Grand Old Gold Bear will feel better after this effort to vindicate the truth of history for the sake of Democratic principles, etc., etc.

The Bulletin replies in a very sensible article to an Albany paper which has demanded that the State Fair shall be taken from Marion county to Linn. It is well argued that the Fair is a State and not a local institution, and that there would seem to be no reason why this expensive improvements at Salem should be given up, and the Society take the risk of finding some other place which will do as well for the Linn, Marion county [illegible] now occupied by the Society on condition that the Fair should be held [illegible] a certain number of years consecutively. Now the question is, if Linn county wants the Fair, how much will she give to obtain it, and reimburse the Society for the [illegible] of the grounds at Salem?

Democratic editors who have not got done howling about the poor little harmless Hartford Convention which conspired more than half a century ago are preparing at Republican conventions for a long and [illegible] campaign. As the widows of the men who fell in defense of the flag are still in mourning, as parents have not yet ceased to weep for sons whose graves are vacant; as there are orphans who are yet scarcely old enough to understand the cause of their fathers' absence, and as twenty-five thousand millions of debt still remain to attest the most [illegible] committed against the country by Democratic leaders, the issues of the war are not so "dead" but they will spring into [illegible] memory whenever this party asks to be intrusted with the power it once so vilely betrayed.

Two or three days ago the Herald devoted a long editorial to an attempt to show that the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment by New York is invalid, because the act of ratification was adopted by the Legislature without the concurrence of the Governor. Now, it so happens that the National Constitution furnishes the law on this subject, and by that instrument the ratifying authority is limited to the Legislature, singly and alone or to a Convention of the people; and the denying voice of the State Executive would be of no effect. This is a matter with which the Governor of a State has nothing to do, because the organic law, which is the sole authority on the subject, takes no notice of a State Executive, but only the Legislature or Convention. The ratification or rejection of a constitutional amendment is not an ordinary act of State Legislation. A Legislature acting in the premises is for the time being tantamount to a Convention of the people, expressly chosen to consider the subject in hand; and the State Executive can have no more to do with it when acted upon by a Legislature than when acted upon by a Convention.

The Avondale Horror—How the Miners Met Their Death.

The Eastern papers give elaborate accounts of the terrible coal mine disaster in Pennsylvania. We extract the following very sad and touching account of how the men in the mine met their death:

"It should be explained that the galleries which penetrate this mine are irregular in line, running east and west under the hill to a considerable distance, with chambers at intervals and doors at varying distances to keep out currents of foul air. There is no doubt but that the miners at once divined the accident that had occurred, and took prompt measures to save themselves. In the long galleries, running obviously east and west, the miners were scattered at work, some in gangways, others in the chambers. Laborers were kept busy filling the cars from the broken coal broken down by the miner's pick; the boys were driving forward the mules to the mouth of the shaft with car loads of coal to be hoisted to the world above; all was proceeding in the customary way, when the rush back of the sulphurous gas from the furnace told the miners too well the nature of the disaster that had occurred.

In the light of what the brave men discovered on going down to rescue their fallen comrades, we can easily trace what followed when the discovery became known through the mine that the shaft had stopped and the fresh air of Heaven excluded. All those in the vicinity of the furnace retreated by winding ways so as to avoid all contact with the poisonous gases, to the utmost limits of the mine, to a gangway 1,200 feet from the bottom of the shaft.

At the entrance to the last gallery of the mine all appalled but yet collected miners met, and with the true instinct of self preservation, proceeded at once to barricade themselves in between a space extending in a semi-circular sweep of some 800 feet. At either end of this limit were two doors, which were instantly closed, and on some crevices being discovered, the men pulled their shirts off and stopped the interstices, but not before the fearful demon in the air had penetrated their last retreat—not in force, however, but in sufficient strength to do the work of death with unerring certainty.

In this terrible chamber their lamps extinguished and the blackness of eternal night closed around them. It is carefully estimated that the strongest men succumbed in eight hours after their self-immurement. The supply of fresh air which they locked in was quickly exhausted by the breathing of 67 pairs of powerful lungs; while all the time the coal above, below and around them was emitting the deadly carbon. Mr Thomas, one of the first of the heroic fellows who penetrated the point in search of the missing men, reports that after breaking the barrier and gaining entrance to the gangway, where all those human lives surrendered to the King of Terror, the sight that met his gaze completely unmanned him, and he wept like a little child. To him there was nothing terrible in the spectacle; the men were once his comrades; their cold, begrimed faces were familiar to his eye, and from the danger of which they were the victims he, himself, had many narrow escapes. It was the touching friendship for each other these rude sons of toil showed in the last moments of their struggle for life that melted the soul of the brave, stern man who descended the perilous shaft to save them if he could. Men were found locked in each other's embrace; others with hands clasped laid themselves down to die; one was discovered calmly sitting by a prostrate companion, as though listening to his dying request. Nothing harsh or angry was seen in the features of the poor fellows. Within a space of 40 feet they had all yielded up their lives, evidently with a heroic resignation to a calm resignation to die like men.

Mr. Hughes, "boss" of the inside mining operation, was found sitting on a heap of coal, his face resting on his hands, as though meditating on his awful situation, and while thus occupied was silently released from existence."

Western Extension of the Union Pacific Railroad.

It is regarded as probable that the Union Pacific Railroad Company, being unable to come to terms of accommodation with the Central Pacific, will undertake to push their road through to the Pacific ocean soon so as to have control of an entire line across the continent. The route would lie considerably north of the present Central Pacific road, and would cross the Sierras by the Beckwourth Pass. The following is a portion of an article from the Sacramento Union on the subject:

"The Union Pacific Company is very rich. It must have saved from its loans and bounties, over and above what the 1,030 miles from Promontory to Omaha cost, nearly enough capital to build the 500 miles necessary to make the connection east of Beckwourth's Pass with the California Pacific. Besides it is a necessity to the people of Idaho, Oregon and western Nevada, and as a constant feeder, Winter and Summer, to the main line east of Promontory, it would be worth much more than its probable cost. We think $30,000 (currency) per mile would more than build it. That would make the whole cost something over $15,000,000 currency. It would have its own feeders: one from Oregon, another from Idaho, but the main one from this State—that which begins at Vallejo and will connect with it at the western line of Nevada. Assuming that the Union Company intend to make this extension, they would probably avoid the valley of the Humboldt, run a little to the north of west from Promontory to the headwaters of the Owyhee, thence upon or near the line bounding Oregon and Nevada, to the lake regions and directly east of the Sierra Nevada, and thence southward, through a region well adapted to agriculture and grazing, to Beckwourth's Pass. Such a route would extend 500 miles, and possibly be 600 miles in length. But it would be on all respects preferable to that of the Central Pacific. It would penetrate a richer mineral and an incomparably better agricultural and timber country. Whatever of agricultural development is in store for the great Silver State must be mainly worked out in the rich valleys close under the Sierra Nevada; and those north of the Truckee are far more extensive than those to the southward. The lake region, including Lassen county, in this State, and Roop county, Nevada, abounds in splendid grazing valleys of great extent, well watered, with abundant timber close at hand, and the richest mines of gold, silver and iron, only waiting on the means a railway would supply to quadruple the wealth and productive capacity of the State. Yet even these are a very small part of the trade that would feed the road. The Oregon branch (sure to be built), by which the Wallamet valley will seek the Eastern markets for its produce, would strike the Union extension 200 miles nearer than it can reach the present Central at the Big Bend of the Humboldt. So, too, it would by a comparatively short branch road, reach the trade of Boise City and the growing settlements on the lower Owyhee, and so on Snake river, and finally to the Dalles, forming a connection with the main branch of the Northern Pacific. Yet after all due allowance for its advantages in these branch connections, it is the California connection that gives it pre-eminence. Every mile of the California Pacific traverses a region of production, either in minerals, timber, or the fruits of the farm, orchard, vineyard, dairy or garden, unsurpassed on the Pacific coast. It is an open route. Careful observations taken during sixteen years by the settlers on the highest table lands of American, Mohawk and Beckwourth valleys, show that the snow accumulations in this pass of the Sierra Nevada are never sufficient to impede railway travel; We have it on the information of several of these old settlers, that the deepest accumulation of snow ever seen at the highest point on the route was less than three feet. That was in the memorable winter of 1861–62, when snow fell on the Central line to the depth of twenty-five feet, and laid at one time four feet deep at the Calaveras Big Trees, which have an altitude of 4,600 feet above tide. Careful surveys show that the greatest altitude touched by a railway through Beckwourth Pass would be a little less than 4,800 feet; and observations extending through many years prove that this part of the Sierra Nevada receives less snow by many inches annually than corresponding altitudes north and south of it. The reason of this difference is not yet ascertained, but the fact is well known, and not disputed. It is said the California Pacific Company, encouraged by the eminent success of that part of their road already completed—nearly ninety miles, including the Sacramento branch—and by the offers of aid they have from Butte and Plumas counties, are ready to carry their road to the line of Nevada as soon as labor can do it. We are confident, if Eastern capitalists knew the advantages of the route, the Vallejo road would not halt a day, and we are equally confident that the Union Pacific could make no more profitable use of their surplus capital than by completing this connection.

Consumption and other Pulmonary Complaints in Oregon.

EAST PORTLAND, Oct. 4, 1869.

Ed. Oregonian:

I notice in your paper of to-day you give some extracts from a communication by Hon. P. W. Raymond to the Engineering and Mining Journal of New York, in which he says, speaking of the climate of Oregon: "It is said to be unhealthy for persons predisposed to pulmonary complaints."

Now this is a mistake which Mr. Raymond must have fallen into from information received from some of our people, who entertain a common but erroneous opinion concerning the effects of our climate on persons predisposed to pulmonary complaints.

Oregon, in her climate, presents more of the necessary qualifications demanded for the restoration of "persons predisposed to pulmonary complaints," than any other portion of the world.

The time is not far distant when a proper communication with the East will be established, and a more extended and perfect knowledge of our State be had, when Oregon will be the great place of resort in the United States, where persons "predisposed to pulmonary complaints" will flock in thousands to inhale our pure mountain and valley air, bringing new life in every breath to their diseased lungs; where "nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep," is obtainable under every tree in those seasons when the consumptive needs it most; where elk, deer, antelope, bear and other meats can be procured, giving the needful exercise, and their succulent juices, will form healthy blood to revivify their whole diseased body.

During ten years of professional life in this State, I have had occasion to "minister" to a large number of persons predisposed to pulmonary complaints, who have had every need of pulmonary disease removed from their systems by pursuing rational hygienic habits of life without the use of a particle of nauseating medicine.

On my arrival in Oregon, I had every symptom of that fell destroyer, consumption—such as chronic cough, night sweats, pigeon breast, etc., etc.—weight 116 pounds. By a proper attention to diet, plenty of out-door exercise and no medicine, my cough ceased, my night sweats disappeared, my lungs and chest expanded, and my weight increased to 190 pounds; and I have not had a symptom of pulmonary disorder in Oregon since. Yet let me go to San Francisco and remain there one month, and all my old and dreaded symptoms return, to again disappear on entering the Columbia river.

I have noticed the good effects of our climate in over one hundred similar cases.

I call attention to this subject not for the purpose of it appearing in print, but to attract attention to facts, and "when found to make a note of it," how Oregon has the luck, always to be (unintentionally in this case) misrepresented. Our people should, with a proper degree of liberality, unite in having the climate and vast resources of our State properly heralded abroad. The Oregon Immigration Society should receive their hearty, united and liberal support, whereby they may procure the necessary data and publish to the world what Oregon truthfully and actually is. Then our valleys will be filled up with industrious families and our mountains will yield up their abudant treasures; our cities will prosper and every one will enjoy a share of the general prosperity. Then our "milk and honey" that have such an extensive existence in Oregon, will not go to waste as is the case now.

Truly Yours,

A. M. LORYEA, M. D.

The San Francisco Examiner declares that it is villainous to deprive California of representation in Congress for its negroes and Chinese, yet insists that they shall have none of the rights of citizenship. To whom does the right of representation exist—in men, or certain other men for them? Has one class of men the right to represent another? So the Examiner claims, and its claim is a fair specimen of Democratic ideas of popular government.

FOR LIVERPOOL, DIRECT.—The bark Adaline Elwood has been chartered by the firm of Corbitt & Macleay, to take a cargo of wheat to Liverpool, direct. She will be ready to go in the stream to-day and commence taking in her cargo from the river steamers. This may be, and if it will be, the inauguration of a direct line of freighting vessels between this city and the grain shipping ports of Europe. Unless some unforeseen event shall intervene to prevent, four or five other vessels will follow the Elwood, in the course of a few days. The firm which has this charter has been buying largely in the interior of the State, at prices quite as high as the respective market will justify, and even higher than would be warranted were the consignment to be made through any other means than direct shipment to the market park.

The opening of direct trade with Europe will be a new and an important era in our agricultural and commercial progress. The enterprise to whose success every man in the State should contribute. Thus far our trades have been few and quite unreliable in respect of profits realized. Gradually we are extending our trade to new markets new to us—and breaking away from the dictation of San Francisco. We now send an occasional vessel to China, direct; to Australia direct; to New York direct; and to other ports without passing our produce through the hands of intermediate buyers at San Francisco. To increase the number of these on an ever-increasing scale, to ensure the success of all, should be one of the first cares of every farmer and merchant in the State. To this end, holders of grain, especially, should offer every possible facility to buyers for foreign markets. Above all things, they should avoid the old fatal error of attributing to the price of grain the moment a buyer appears—also in the neighborhood. Farmers must know that the price of wheat is as high now as it will be next year, two years hence, or ever. All we expect is to be during this fall and higher than it will be if we must depend upon San Francisco as our purchaser. Many holders of grain refuse to sell so long as they can get a few cents advancing in a few years to the profits of the public investment. Portland is a commercial port on the Pacific coast, and capitalists and merchants accustomed to the principle and methods of trade operated with foreign ports; and we have been gratified and that the building, when completed, will be creditable to the Government.

BISHOP WORDEN OF THE UNITED BRETHREN.—Bishop Worden of the United Brethren Church preached to each last evening at the Church on Taylor street.

THE STEAMER SAILS.—The steamer Taylor will be due at this port to-day from San Francisco at 5 o'clock.

BUILDING.—Mr. Ladd is erecting on the corner of Third and Yamhill streets, several new wooden buildings, two stories high.

ARRIVALS.—Several teams from the country, loaded with produce, arrived in town yesterday. A portion of the merchandise brought up the Columbia river by steamboats is destined for this section in fully as good as that which will sail for San Francisco at 5 o'clock.

[illegible] Exhibition.—A correspondent from Astoria recently published in the Oregonian, in the items of Government expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1869, the expenditure of the Post Office Department in Oregon exceeded the receipts by the sum of $634,018 68.

[illegible] during the year ending June 30, 1869, the sum of 39,[illegible] was received by the Government in the United States for depositing the proceeds of Marshals' sales and with [illegible] maintenance of prisoners.

[illegible] 1869, Oregon had 25 army pensioners on the rolls of the United States. Amount paid yearly, $[illegible].

[illegible] Since the opening of the Labor Exchange in this city, the Secretary has had seventeen [illegible] applications, mostly all as laborers, gardeners, [illegible] six are Americans, one colored man. The Secretary has now unemployed [illegible] for Salem; one pattern maker, one wood-chopper, Columbia river, [illegible] city. In most cases the wages are [illegible] employment offered. Parties desiring to [illegible] supplement should communicate with [illegible] M. Drake, and may rely upon obtaining the power of the Exchange to bestow [illegible].

[illegible] —On the 19th inst. a grand ball will be given at Grand Guard's Armory, under the auspices of Lodge of Odd Fellows, of this city. [illegible] are advertised as follows:

[illegible] Reception—I. S. Rosenbaum, C. A. [illegible] and O. V. Winkingcode, Al. Zieber, [illegible].

[illegible] —Conversing with a farmer yesterday, he [illegible] the opinion that though the rains [illegible] much grain this fall, they had also brought [illegible] much earlier and more luxuriant [illegible] the value of it to farmers and stockmen [illegible] or quite compensate them for the [illegible]. This may be to a great extent true.

[illegible] —Second appearance, last evening, of Mr. [illegible] Phelps and the Carlton & Edwards Troupe to-night, which an entirely [illegible] will be presented.

[illegible] AND OTHER PREMIUMS.—The P. T. Co. [illegible] that they will carry all articles designed [illegible] at the State Fair, at half the regular rates [illegible] where the articles are also designed for [illegible] they will be charged $5 from Portland, and [illegible] City, for the round trip, and be furnished [illegible] tickets.

[illegible] —A country team, coming down the [illegible] yesterday, got frightened and ran away. [illegible] upset, the driver and his wife were rolled [illegible] in a style more romantic and picturesque [illegible] effects than pleasant, while a child was [illegible] got under the wagon and seriously [illegible].

[illegible] All persons holding vouchers for labor or material [illegible] in the construction of the Custom House and Post Office for the month ending 30th September, [illegible] to present the same to the disbursing [illegible] at the Post Office this day, from 12 M. till 1 P. M., [illegible] they will be paid.

[illegible] by the Supreme Court, of the judgment of the [illegible] in the case of O'Hara vs the city of Portland. [illegible] decision are not known. In the case [illegible] Multnomah county, the judgment in the [illegible] has been affirmed.

[illegible] was received yesterday of the death [illegible] city of this city and Deputy Clerk [illegible]. He died a day or two since at [illegible] after a long and painful illness. We feel [illegible] friends, to whom this news will bring [illegible] grief.

HOW CAN THEY DO IT.—The millers of Walla Walla are reported as giving eighty cents per bushel for all the wheat they can get. We do not understand how they can do it at the prices for flour, with freight charges out, will scarcely warrant paying seventy cents here.

STEAMERS TO SALEM.—We are informed by Mr. Bliss that a steamer will be dispatched for Salem each day during this week. The boats from this city connecting at Oregon City with the up-river boats, will leave the P. T. Co.'s wharf at 5 o'clock A. M., as usual.

THOMAS THUMB.—Gen. Tom Thumb and wife, Commodore Nutt and Minnie Warren are advertised to give an entertainment in this city, Monday evening, October 18th. Their agent, Ned Davis, arrived by stage Sunday evening.

INSANE.—On Sunday evening Sheriff R. A. Irvine, of Linn county, arrived at this city having in charge an insane man named Samuel Jackson. The unfortunate man was placed in the Asylum yesterday.

THE ROADS.—A gentleman who has just passed over the stage road represents it as in bad condition in many places. There are rough bridges between here and Eugene City, that are dangerous.

COUNTY COURT.—The October term of the County Court was begun yesterday morning. No business of importance transacted. Adjourned till to-day.

RAILROAD TIES.—A raft of railroad ties for the East Side road were landed yesterday near the place where the temporary wharf is being built.

RELIEF SOCIETY MEETING.—Ladies of the Relief Society will meet in the basement of the Presbyterian Church to-day (Tuesday) at 2½ o'clock P. M.

DEPUTY CLERK.—Mr. Jos. R. Wiley has been appointed Deputy Clerk, vice Tom Miller, resigned, Mr. Norden's selection is a good one.

GONE DOWN THE RIVER.—The bark Live Yankee was towed down the river yesterday by the steamer Okanogan.

PEWS TO BE RENTED.—The pews in the first Presbyterian church are to be rented next Thursday evening.

MAILS FOR CALIFORNIA.—The U. S. mail for California, by steamer Pacific, will close this P. M. at 5:45.

THAT CRY, AND STILL THEY COME.—It is astonishing the amount of fine and good Clothing is received every steamer at the store of KOHN & FISHEL, No. 91 First street. Their Stock of Clothing surpasses any Stock ever imported to this State. Having purchased their Stock in New York, they are enabled to sell cheaper than any House this side of San Francisco. Their Stock of Beaver Suits are the neatest suits ever imported to Oregon. Everybody wanting to appear in style and buy goods cheap should call on Kohn & Fishel. Their stock of Dry Goods is offered AT COST to close that branch of goods.

REMEMBER.—That on Tuesday evening, October 12th, the Nonpareil Lodge, I. O. G. T., will give a Supper and Sociable at the Hall on First street, between Yamhill and Taylor. Tickets can be obtained at the door.

TO STRANGE PARENTS—RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.—Dr. Kalisch has commenced imparting religious instruction to the children of those parents who may be desirous of committing their children under the (almost paternal) care of a man whose truly religious character and simplicity have ever most extraordinarily attuned his mind to that of simple childhood, and exercised a "magnetic" power over the juveniles brought within his influence which unregenerate minds can never acquire. The instructions will, till the new Synagogue will be completed, be given at the Washington Armory Hall, next building to the Portland Library. Till then, they will be given on the Sabbath and Holy days, after the close of the regular morning service.

By order of the President.

P. LEVIN, Secretary.

A Sensible View.

The attempt of the Democracy to bring the Republican party into disrepute by charging it with a desire to give the Chinese the right of suffrage, has little or no weight outside of the Pacific States. In the Troy Times (Democratic) of a recent date, we find the following very sensible views expressed regarding the Chinese:

It is in vain to try and shut them out. As well might California seek to set new bounds to the Pacific as to close her gates to the tide of human life that sets in so strongly from the opposite coast of China. The men who are coming have been invited here, and are entitled to a welcome. For forty years they have heard from our traveling countrymen and others, the praises of the land where the emigrant from every nation of the world is made welcome. They know it has been our boast that none are excluded, but that here the stranger of every race might find a home. Is there any escape from the consequences of our own acts, if the yellow man of the "narrow brow" accepts the invitation? Those are wise who recognize the inevitable necessity of permitting Chinese emigration, and have set their wits to work to see how best it can be turned to general welfare. We are not of those who believe that the "proud Caucasian" is to be crushed by the Asiatic laborer of "squat figure" and "dull eye." As well might California Democracy begin to howl again about the danger of negro domination. But we do believe that American energy will so use Asiatic labor as to make the next half a century tell upon this continent with a result equal to five centuries in Europe.

A WONDERFUL THING.—The New York Tribune remarks:

We do not often find an opportunity to praise the Democratic party, but, whenever we do find one, we make a point of improving it. The recent action of the Philadelphia Democrats seems to us to deserve special commendation. It were bootless to narrate how the worse element of that party got the upper hand during the desperate effort to carry the State for Seymour and Blair by wholesale fraud; suffice it that such was the case, and that one result was the nomination of a fearfully bad city and county ticket for the approaching State election. It may not have been all bad, but it was notoriously very bad. Thereupon, the rank and file of the party, after due consideration, resolved not to support it. It did no good to bawl, "Support the regular nominations!" "Democracy forever!" "Down with the nigger-worshippers!" "No scratching!" &c., &c.; the masses listened as cool as cucumbers and stood to their resolve that the rowdies and blacklegs who had made the ticket should try their hand at electing it and see how they got on. Expostulation, entreaty, execration, were tried and found equally and utterly futile; so the candidates had to be coaxed to get out of the way, the Nominating Convention reassembled, and a different sort of ticket was set before the people. The lesson will do good for the next dozen years.

LIFE IN WHITE FIRE.—The Hamilton Inland Empire, 24th inst., says:

A lady of about forty-two summers, who has long been the victim of a fantasy that she would some day win and wear a husband, inveigled a young gentleman of literary proclivities, in this city, into the belief that she was a mine of extraordinary richness. The man of letters loved chloride, and was willing to take an interest in that claim, even if the ore contained a little base metal. But a change came over the spirit of his dream when he found that the venerable lady had no change worth speaking of. He recanted his plighted troth, and when pushed to the wall by his ancient Dulcinea to redeem it, incontinently insulted the marriageable female by intimating that she was an "old bilk." Broomsticks suddenly came into vogue, and the literateur hastily skedaddled. The antique dame declares she will pursue her faithless lover for breach of promise; but we fear it will be of no avail, for we understand that the persecuted youth has secured passage for Elko by one of to-day's coaches.

The Iceberg.

"Observe the little bit of ice that clinks in your tumbler at dinner-time. Observe it closely, and you will perceive how very small a part of it floats above the surface of the water—not more than one-eighth, at the farthest—while the remaining seven-eighths float beneath. Now, this little bit of ice is an iceberg in miniature—an iceberg in every essential feature, except that it did not, in all human probability, come from Greenland. In shape, in general transparency, in the play of light upon it, in its prismatic character, in its frequently cavernous form, in the general shape of the projecting tongues which lie beneath the surface of the water, in the delicate mist which plays around its summit in the warm air, it is the very image of those great, floating monoliths of the Arctic frost which come sailing down Baffin's Bay with the polar current, in all their stately grandeur and magnificence, scorning, as they tread their watery way, the great tallows of the ocean with a cold disdain, sending them away, moaning and shattered, in defeat, chilling the air for leagues around, yet gathering to themselves the gorgeous colors of the sky; immovable from their steadfast course, and majestic as the 'silvery moon,' that like the iceberg, bathes its piles in the trembling wave.'

"The iceberg is the largest independent floating body in the universe, except the heavenly orbs. There is nothing approaching it with the range of our knowledge, on this globe of ours, and yet it is, as we have seen, but a fragment of its ice stream, which is, in its turn, but an arm of the ice-sea. And yet the iceberg is to the great quantity of Greenland ice as the paring of a finger-nail to the human body; as a small chip to the largest tree; as a shovelful of earth to the Manhattan Island. Yet magnify the bit of ice in your tumbler until it becomes, to your imagination, a half mile in diameter each way, and you have a mass that is far from marshal. Add to this a mile, two miles of length, and you have what may be sometimes seen. I have sailed alongside of an iceberg, two miles and a half, measured with a log-line, before coming to the end of it.

"The name is ice, as we have seen before, ice mountain, and it is truly mountain-ous in size. Lift it out of the water, and it becomes a mountain one thousand, two thousand, three thousand feet high. In dimensions, it is as if New York city were turned adrift in the Atlantic, or the Central Park were cut out and launched in the ocean place. An iceberg of the average dimensions of the Central Park is far from unusual. And its surface is not to be smiled at either. It is undulating like the Park, and craggy, and crossed by ravines, and dotted with lakes in the water of the icy being formed from the melting snows of the interior, and also the ice itself. After the autumn appeared before the summer of the artist's sun. I have even visited an iceberg in May, although I am glad to say but once, and that was in those days of my youth, when the youthful insanity is about to say, 'I have danced'—a disease which I believe to be incurable only to that treatment popularly known as 'sad experience.' I went on an iceberg like it far more satisfactorily and sensible.

"Now, as the general contour of the iceberg as they are to be seen every day in the Arctic seas.

"Let us go back to the ice stream of Ankatlarsoit, with which we closed the last paper. Here we saw an imaginary iceberg starting its hold upon the land, breaking loose from the parent stem, and restoring to the sea its own again. I would once more call attention to that ice stream, and show more particularly its river like character.

"I have spoken of the long line of glacier fronts, stretching away to the opposite shore, in glittering white and blue and green; but it was not unbroken front. Nearits outer edge was a dark rock nearly embedded in the ice—the last living on both sides of it, and overlapping it.

"The rock had been an island. The ice-stream, flowing out into the fiord, took out with it the rock, this island, and, encroaching more and more upon it, from year to year, mounting it to the rock, had finally attained the position in which I have described. And the rock aside, Philip, if his observant eye had any change to make during the period of his contemplation of the fiord.

"Oh, yes," said he, "a very great change. When I came here I could pull all the way ashore. Look how far from the face of the glacier it is now."

"How long was the rock?

"As long as the distance was from there to—"

"No matter, my son, no matter.

"That is very little now a time, and have brought with it many a barrel of eggs, and many a bear skin to town.

"Yes, all parts of the world—for the general ice-stream, as we have seen, bears its burden to the sea—is a most valuable observation—rule of last, according to Philip, in five-and-twenty minutes seven inches for each hour. My own observation of an iceberg in the United through almost a year, showed, as we have previously stated, a daily rate of [illegible] Suppose Philip to have even doubled the distance in his rough guessing, we have still a rate of flow equal to three inches and a half per day. An inspection of the numerous breakings from its front shows that it must have been considerable indeed, judging from the great numbers of icebergs which we had seen floated down the fiord, all of which [illegible] Many of the largest of these had formed in the fiord ever since Philip came there. Missing the deepest channels they grounded, and held on for years and years, till they had been gradually reduced in size, and by pieces breaking off from them, but never yet were small enough to slide over the rocky bottom and reach the [illegible] floated upon those ancients with [illegible]

"But—What was that?

"We still stood upon the summit of the block overlooking the fiord and the ice-stream. The latter had been comparatively quiet for some minutes, as I have said before, sometimes by the breaking off of a small piece from its front, sometimes by a partial crack opening far up into the body of it, as it strained in its bed, but now a loud report, as of deep mortars, would make both its profound depths [illegible] indeed, as if from the very bowels of the earth. It fairly shook the ground on which we stood.

"Philip said quickly, 'The ice is coming to pieces.'

"An instant after the report was repeated, louder and still more startling. The shock beneath my feet was more sensibly felt; it seemed like the first warning cry of a coming earthquake.

"Philip said again, 'See! it is rising.'

"A portion of the glacier was being lifted by the sea. A great wave was rolling back with this movement of the ice, and was dashed wildly against the ice in front.

"An instant more, the sound, which was before so deep and loud, now broke through the air with a crash that was almost deafening—as when a heavy gun is fired near by.

"I knew that a monstrous crack was opening in the ice-stream.

"The position of the crack was soon seen. A fragment, of enormous proportions, had been disengaged. Its front raised itself aloft as if it were some great leviathan endowed with life, and while it rose the crack opened wide. The quickly moving mass plunged forward, crashing against other ice-masses, scattering the broken fragments to right and left with irresistible force. Then the inner side rose up and the fragment sank down, while vast volumes of water that had been lifted with it went roaring and hissing over its sides into the [illegible] and violently agitated sea.

"Thus an iceberg had been born.

"It would be impossible, with mere words alone, to give any adequate idea of the action of this new born child of the Arctic frosts. Think of a solid mass of ice a third of a mile deep and more than half a mile in diameter, hurled like a mere toy into the water, and set to rolling to and fro by the impetus of the act—as if it were Nature's merest foothall—down one side, until the huge mass was nearly [illegible] then back again and down the other side, with the same unresisting force; and so on, up and down, swaying to and fro, for hours, before it comes finally to rest. The disturbance of the water was inconceivably [illegible] of enormous magnitude were rolled up with great violence against the glacier, pouring it with spray, and vast billows came tearing down the fiord, their progress marked by the crowding and crumbling of the ice, which was in a state of wildest agitation throughout a space of several miles. Over the smaller of the icebergs these billows broached completely, breaking as if a tempest were piling up the waters, and heaving them with infuriated might against a rocky shore. Then, to add to the commotion thus made, the great wallowing iceberg, that was the cause of it all, was dropping fragments from its sides with each revolution, the reports reaching the ear above the general din and clamor. Then other bergs, as they were successively set in motion by the waves, also dropped pieces from their sides; and at last, as if it were the grand finale of the piece—the clash of the cymbals and the big brass-drum of Nature's grand orchestra—a monstrous berg, split in two, and, during the noise of moving waters and crumbling ice, filled the air with a peal that rang among the bergs and crags, and, echoing from hill to hill, died away only in the void beyond the mountain-tops; while to the noisy rhythm the huge leviathans of the fiord dance their wild, ungainly dance upon the waters.

"It was many hours before this state of wild unrest was succeed by a calm; and when at length the iceberg that I had seen born came quietly to rest, and the other icebergs had ceased to dance their dance upon the troubled sea, and the billows had stilled their lashings, it seemed to me that, in beholding this birth of an iceberg, I had beheld one of the most sublime exhibitions of the great forces of Nature. It was indeed a convulsion."—Dr. I. I. Hayes, in Appletons' Journal.

Sugar.

Sugar is of modern use only. The ancients were unacquainted with it as an article of commerce, or of common use. What a revolution in our household affairs would it occasion to strike sugar from the list of dietary articles. It is a necessity, not a luxury. Within the last 400 years it has grown from being an article of curiosity or luxury to be one of the great staples of commerce. It enters every department of domestic economy. Hutabold says, that in China it was known and used in ancient times; but it known at all in Western Asia or Europe till within the last few centuries, it was only as travelers brought it as remembrances of foreign climes and distant travel. There is some foundation for the idea that it was not entirely unknown to the ancient Greeks. We find in the classics mention made of honey that bees did not make, and honey from reeds. (The sugar cane being a reed.) From these expressions it is thought that sugar is meant, as all sweet articles remaining with the term honey in early days. Pliny says, there is a kind of honey from reeds—this is like gum, and is used as a medicine. Some allusions in the Bible seem to refer to sugar, and not honey. In latter times, it is said that the Crusaders found sweet honeyed trees growing in the meadows of Tripoli; that they sucked these canes, and were delighted with the operation; that these canes were cultivated with great care, and when ripe were pounded in mortars, and the juice was strained and dried to a solid, like salt; that mixed with bread it was more pleasant than honey. In 1420, the Portuguese brought the cane to Spain, Madeira and the Canaries, and thence it was carried to the West Indies and Brazil. In these countries it found the conditions for its rapid development, and the wild and luxuriant with the products of those countries so that sugar assumed a place among the chief articles of commerce.
